

1. List of Funding Sources

The following list contains the names and contact information of organizations that fund a wide variety of projects and activities.

Most of the funds listed might be useful for for community health and social planning work, capacity building, health and social development work and/or activities that encourage wellness.

The information is intended to be useful for health and social development staff and it could also be useful to other members of your community. You can share the information with consultants, volunteers or other community members or departments if you choose.

Information is provided as where to specifically look for websites.

Look for Click On and See for how to find particularly useful information. Please do not limit your searches to only these suggestions however, as a lot of potentially useful information can be found on each website.

We suggest that you start your searches by going to the web sites marked with an asterisk (*) if you are looking for long, comprehensive lists of all the funds available to First Nations people in Canada.

We also suggest that you contact the funders directly or visit their websites for further information. In a few cases, First Nation departments are not eligible for the identified funds, although individuals or other community groups such as schools or non-profit organizations might be eligible.

Please contact the Council of Yukon First Nations Health and Social Development office if you have any suggestions for additions to this list at 867.393.9240.

This project is funded by Health Canada through the Aboriginal Health Transition Fund. The opinions expressed in these documents are those of the authors/researchers and do not necessarily reflect the official views of Health Canada and the Council of Yukon First Nations. Inclusion on this list is not intended to be an endorsement of the services provided by these entities. The information in this document can be shared for non-commercial purposes only.

This project is funded by Health Canada through the Aboriginal Health Transition Fund. The opinions expressed in these documents are those of the authors/researchers and do not necessarily reflect the official views of Health Canada and the Council of Yukon First Nations. Inclusion on this list is not intended to be an endorsement of the services provided by these entities. The information in this document can be shared for non-commercial purposes only.