

A MESSAGE TO ALL YUKONERS

June 18, 2021

The recent COVID-19 outbreak has many Yukoners on edge. And while we can envision the day when we are able to gather without restrictions or concern, we are not there yet.

If you are planning to visit the Klondike, we ask that you commit to following the guidance issued by the Chief Medical Officer regarding responsible travel through rural communities. We also ask that you keep attuned to any public health advisories and notices, practice the safe six plus one while you're here, and keep to your social bubble.

Right now, we are only open to respectful, responsible visitors. There are many ways to enjoy Dawson even with public-health measures in place, but if your plans include gathering for a non-physically-distanced party with people outside your social bubble, please postpone your plans until the pandemic is over.

The Yukon has done an incredible job in preventing the spread of COVID-19, and we are uplifted by the care Yukoners have shown for others over the past year. It has kept our communities safe and healthy and puts us in a good position to be quickly past this latest challenge. Let's keep looking after one another. We'll get through this.

Sincerely,

Wayne Potoroka
